Theme — Our Environment

"This is the forest primeval, the murmuring pines and the hemlocks . . . " Uncorrupted, unsoiled, like the soul of a child, graced by God, the primeval world once turned in season and out of season . . . but slowly, at times imperceptibly (like the growth and greening of a leaf), at times, grossly apparent (like the gathering of eagles), the greed and ignorance and unconcern of "reasoning" man turned our one-time paradise into a death-rattled and unproductive and raped and dying world. From the polluting of our lakes and streams, to the savage massacre of threatened species, to the total neglect of what individual man can do (or presidents and kings, for that matter), we do little more than pay occasional, ineffective lip-service. Man must return to living with nature — as our Indians had done — and not struggle in a losing and death-tolling battle against it.

"The way man has looked upon nature has determined how he has treated it. In the mist of the past man and nature were one."

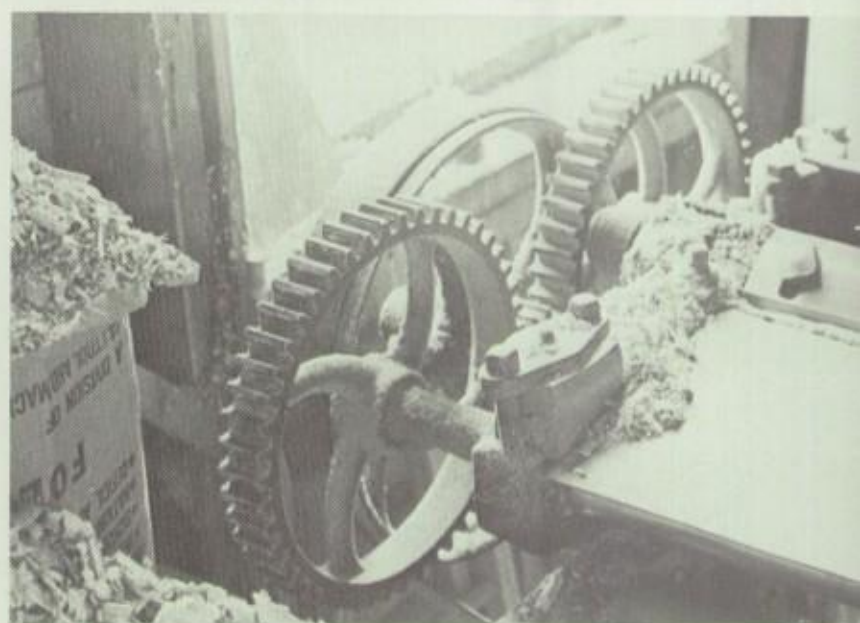

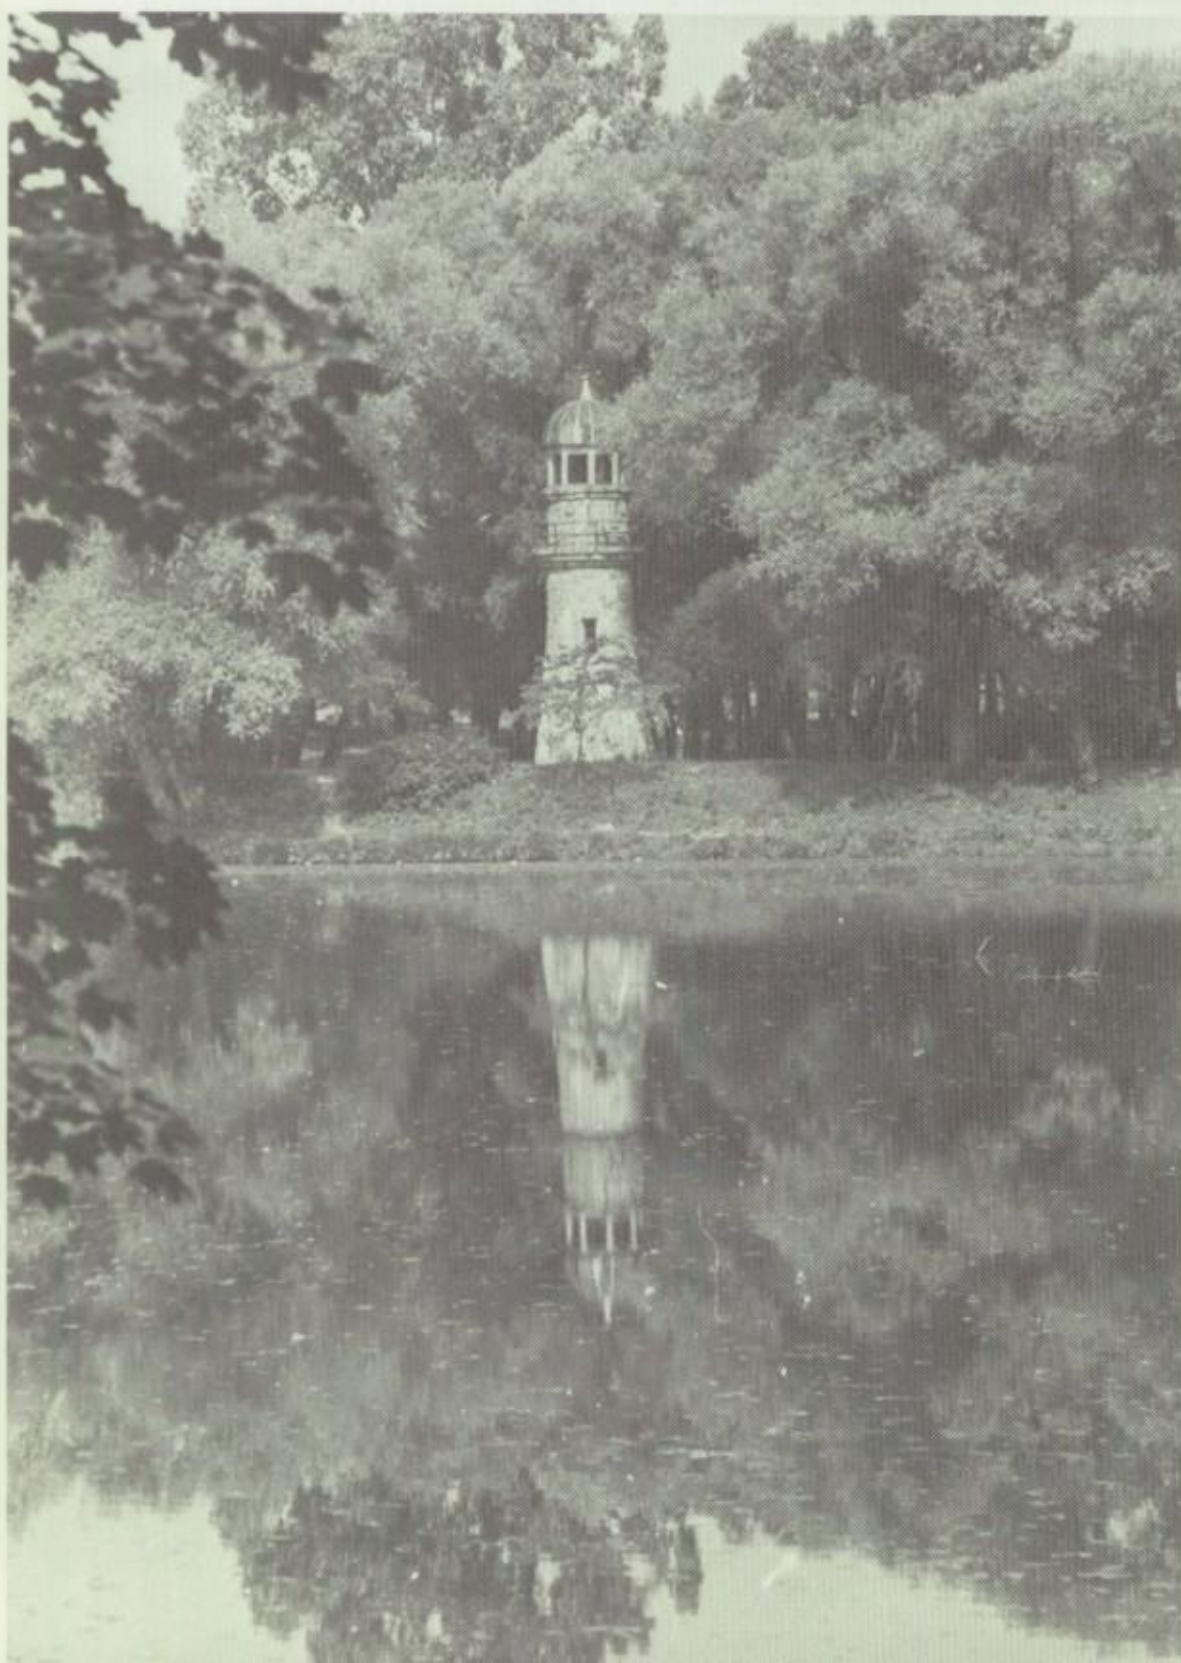

Paul Folsom: And Thou Shalt Die In a Polluted Land.

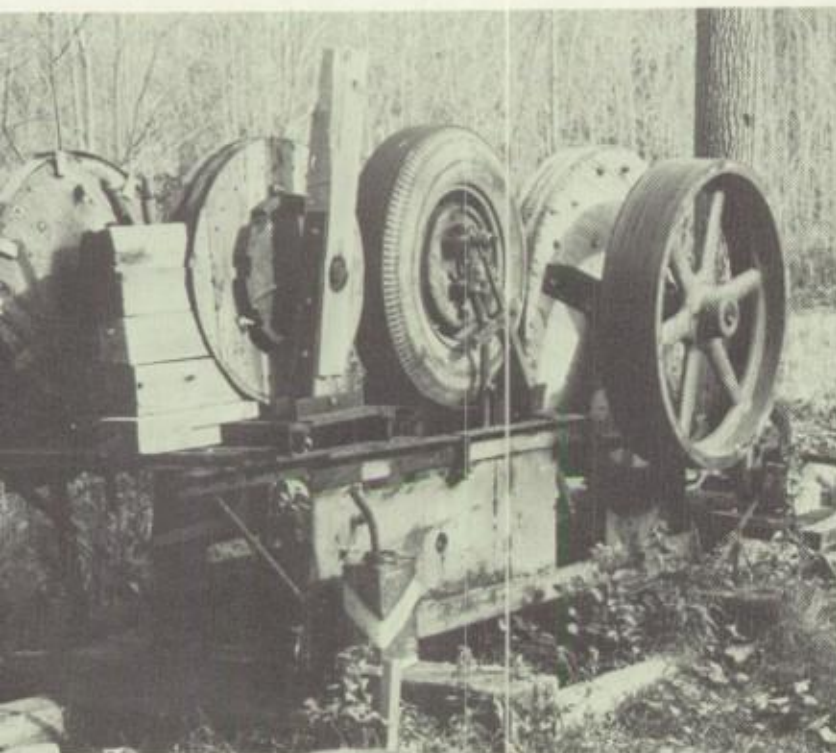

Ecology teaches us one important lesson: man must not be isolated from his surroundings — for man can reshape it, and is in turn reshaped by it.

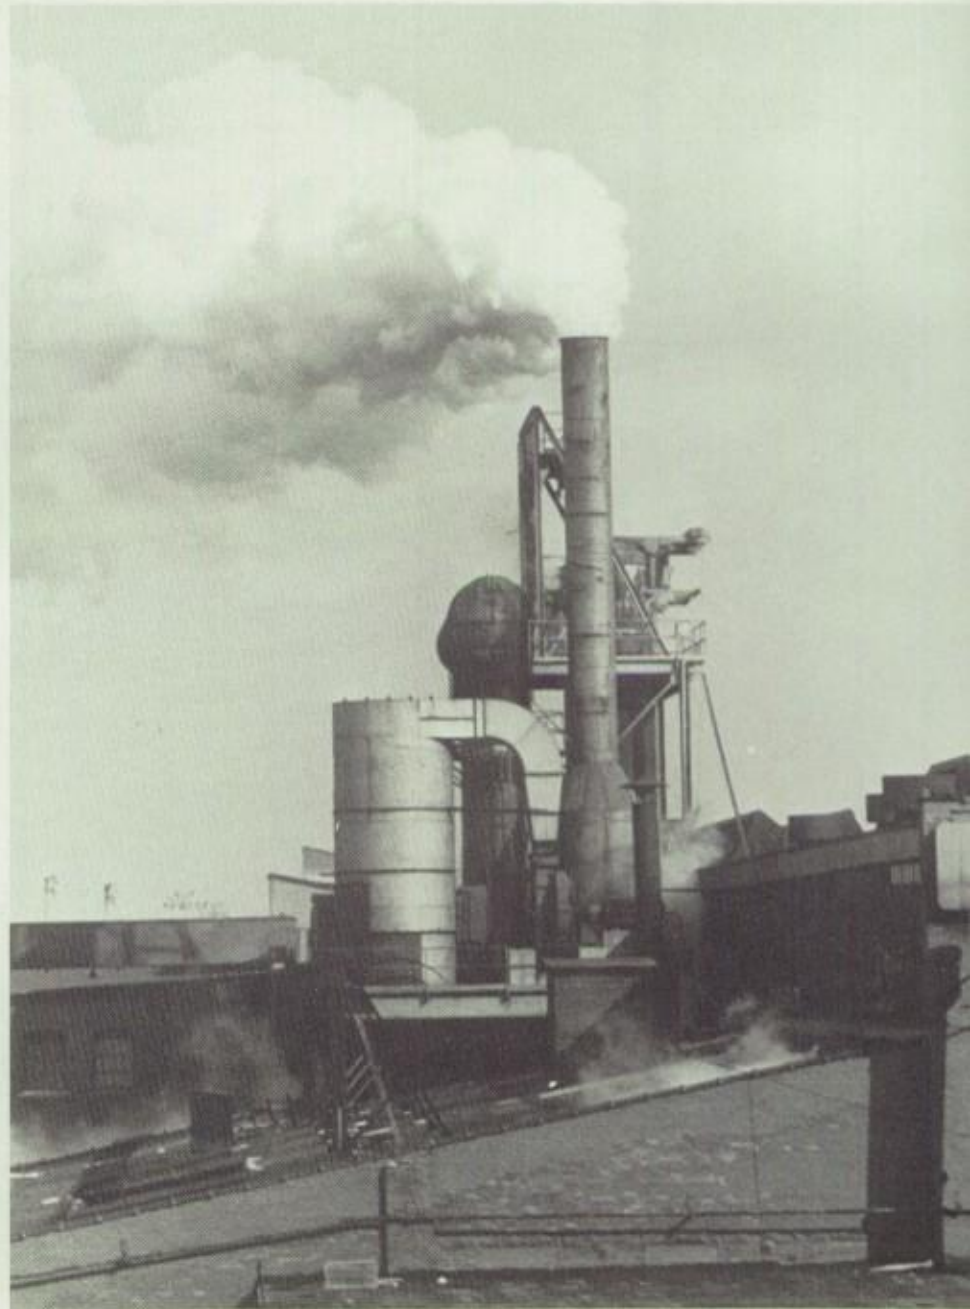

"Man the Worker must at the same time be Man the Preserver . . . for he who used the world and its gifts ought never to abuse them — for this is EXPLOITATION, the worst of sins, whether against persons or things!" — Peter Willkomm

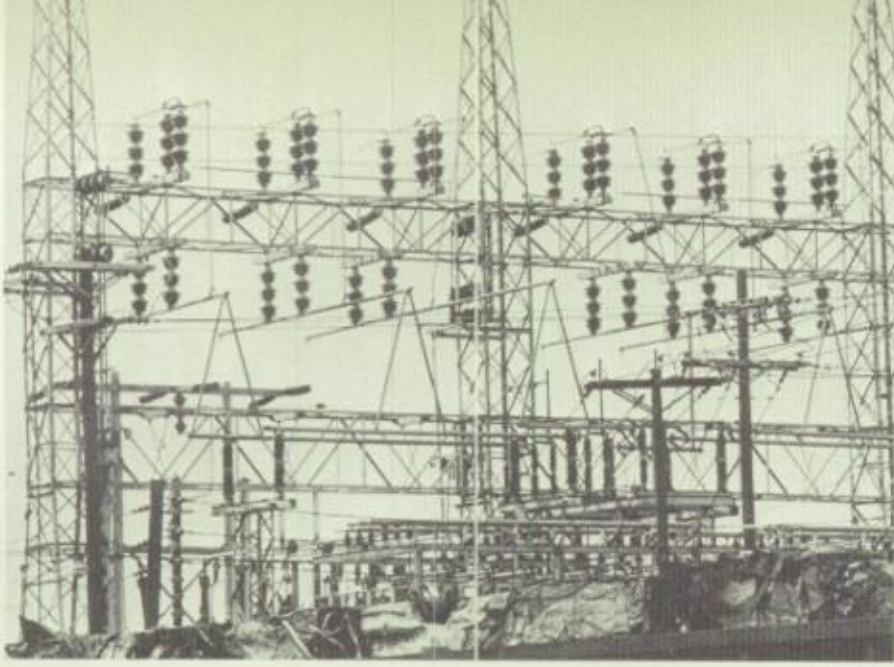

Watch it tremble
 Watch it quake
 By the tiny flower
 That radiates its beauty
 This the crystal blue water
 That runs through the roving countryside
 And leads to the bay
     Where it grows deep and wide
 And passes through the town
 And fills with oil from the boats
 And waste from the dinner
     table
 That settle at it's sandy
     bottom.
 Buildings shoot upward
 Air turns thicker,
 Reaking of chemicals

That found their way
 With help from the people
 To the stream that grew into a lake
 And rest at its now crusty
     bottom
 And wash away to the sea:
 Gifts from man —
 "Til not one more speck of garbage can matter . . .
 The ocean turns orange . . .
 And the man with his habit
 Drops the match
 All the waters ignite
 And rage out of control —
 'Til all that's left are ashes
 And there's no one left to sweep them up.
     — Lauren Murphy
     1970

"But nature is all one body, and if anyone wounds part of it, the whole is weakened. If nature dies, its people die with it . . . We can no longer be indifferent to what is killing the white whale, why there are so few songbirds, and even why the worm cannot live in our treated soil. We are all part of the same life system. Their destiny is related in some way to mankind. We must open our eyes to all the beauty around us with the same sense of wonder as when we view the dawn of a new day."

— Paul Folsom

In Memoriam

Kathy Dougherty: "she lived life to its fullest — as a teenager should. She experienced the ups and downs of school life — cheerleading, classes ... young romance ... she enjoyed the games, she would sit in the town park watching the baseball team with her friends" — she died on December 26, 1971.

(From her eulogy at St. Marys-on-the-Hill)

Dedication To The American Indian

It is not only with pride, but also a justified shame, that this 1972 yearbook is dedicated to the AMERICAN INDIAN — Man the Cheated and Exploited. We have too long, and perhaps too late, neglected to give this people their rights and their dignity. It is with a continuing shame that we — secondary Americans (who once made it our determined program to exterminate the Indian!) — still rob this same Indian — the primary American — of his heritage and destiny. We who have forced him off his land, marched him to confining reservations, and slaughtered his people could have learned from him how to live and adapt — ecologically — with his land and his country: it is the American Indian who teaches us the vital interdependence between man and the landscape. We are thankful for this late-appreciated education.

Faculty

To teach is to continue growing . . . it is to stimulate the formative minds of youth (some eager to learn, others defying the teacher to try!) . . . it means early appointments and late lonely hours . . . it means red-penciled corrections and class preparations . . . it means keeping abreast of your field . But, above all, it is "community-in-learning": a giving, a sharing, and a receiving!

Organizations

Five percent, you say . . . only five percent! Yes, and it's getting smaller! Only five percent of a student body are the leaders . . . and the organizers . . . and the workers, you know, those who get things done, who keep the school alive and vital, who see the needs and are self-sacrificing enough to fill those needs, even though it means using their unscheduled mods, their evenings and their free days. Thank God we have that wonderful five percent!

"Before I was in the Senate, all I ever did was criticize: the homeroom reps, senators, and executives — all of them came under my scrutiny. I decided I'd get myself elected and change the whole show! Well, I got myself elected — still nothing has changed much — but I don't complain like I used to."

"'All the word's a stage ... ' — what's-his-name said, and man! do I love that type of stage-power! There's a certain feeling connected with on-stage-acting, you know: to see a whole audience listening to you, to hear them laugh at your funny lines, to have them applaud you, to feel their friendly slap on your back, or have them kiss you when it's all over! man, that's power! Even the tears that run down your cheek after that last production feel good — at least, inside!"

"If there's one thing I'd like to complain about — music-wise, that is — here at SMH, it's that not enough emphasis is put on classical music, let's call it 'lasting stuff'. I'm not knocking AM radio, you understand, but let's not get lopsided over it. Give the other guys a chance — without that ignorant sneer on your face!"

"When I was young, I wanted to help people, you know, sorta upgrade the world. I had visions of myself as a new Florence Nightengale, lamp in hand, in a clean white uniform, aiding the sick. Now I want to be a dental assistant. I'll admit it's less glamorous, but it's helping people, which is really what I wanted in the first place ... and besides, I get the clean white uniform!"

Marian Gazette

"Personally, I like newspaper work ... with its deadlines and layout work and title creation and working with Sr. Ruth and good ole Miz Greene. And this year we even started a journalism class to help out. But what I can't figure out is why we can't get more issues out! Really, why not? I guess it's a matter of understanding responsibility ... personal, school, and newspaper responsibility."

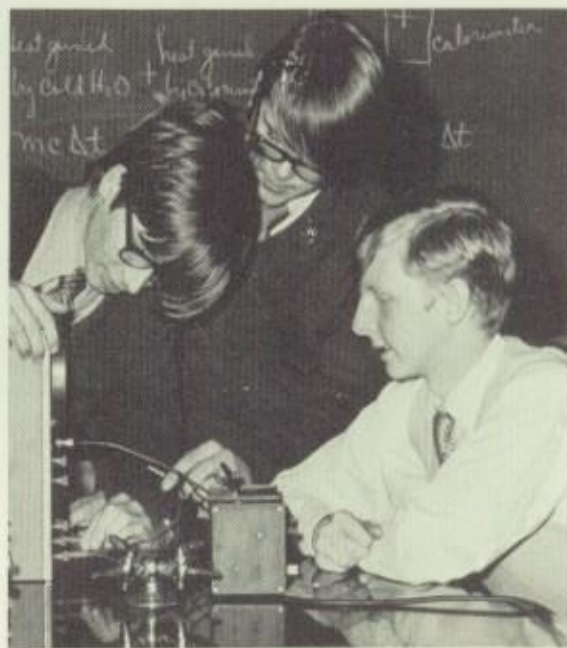

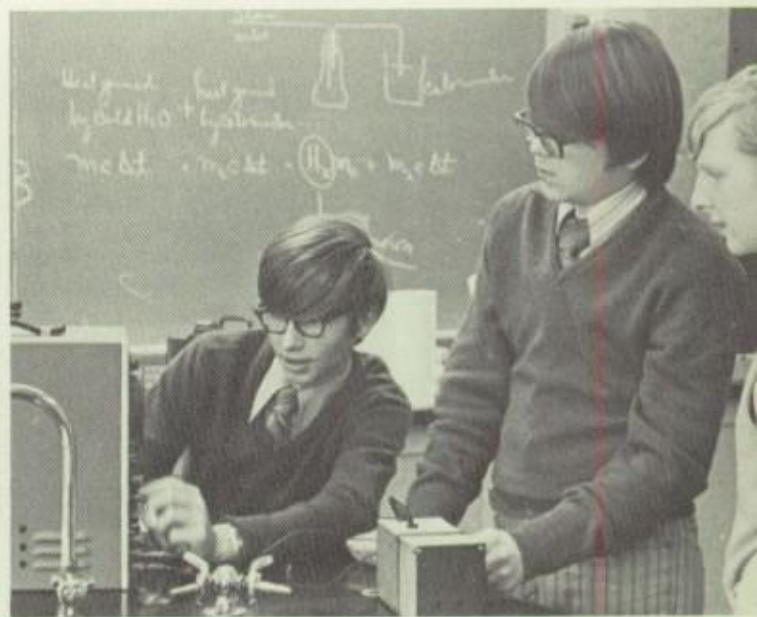

"Science was always my favorite subject, not in a 'mad' sort of way, but with a sense of wonder . . . so I migrated toward the Science Club. But I wish we'd do more, you know, like personal investigation, experimentation, and scientific discovery — on our own level. Maybe I should try to change it, maybe I will!"

"I still remember the tapping ceremony. The whole thing was a big surprise, really! I wanted it to happen, sure, but not all my wishes come true. It was great: my parents coming down the aisle ... my shaking hands with Mr. Hughes ... I was excited as I stood there signing the register and raising my voice to take the pledge. It was one of my happy days ... also for my folks."

"Not another deadline, Fr. Lloyd?!"

"And furthermore, Fuzzy, it never lies!"

"Say, kids looked funny in the old days."

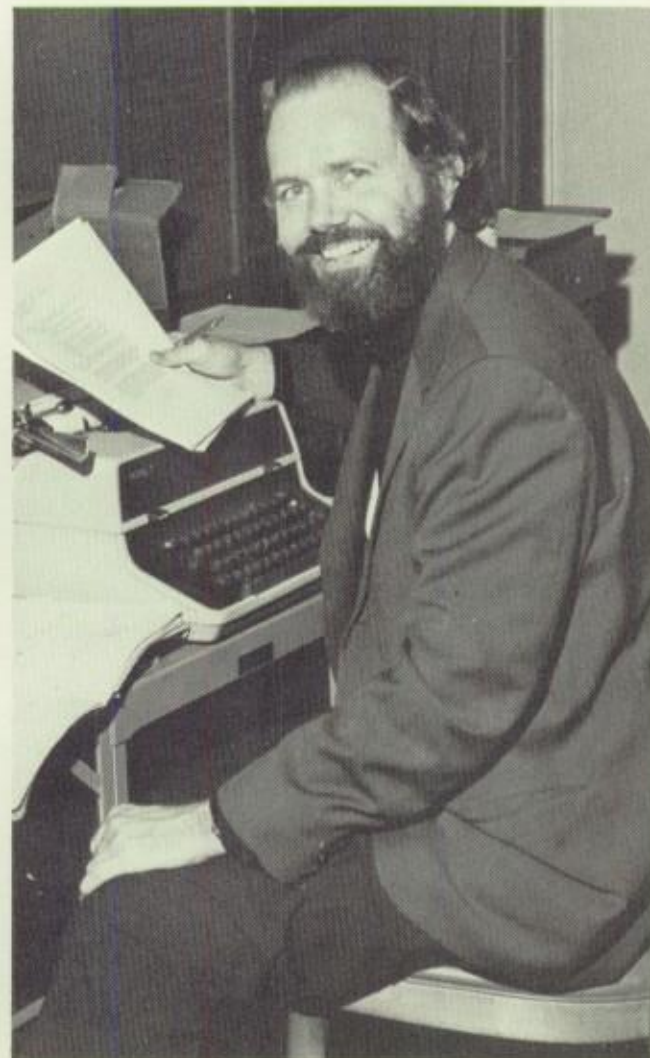

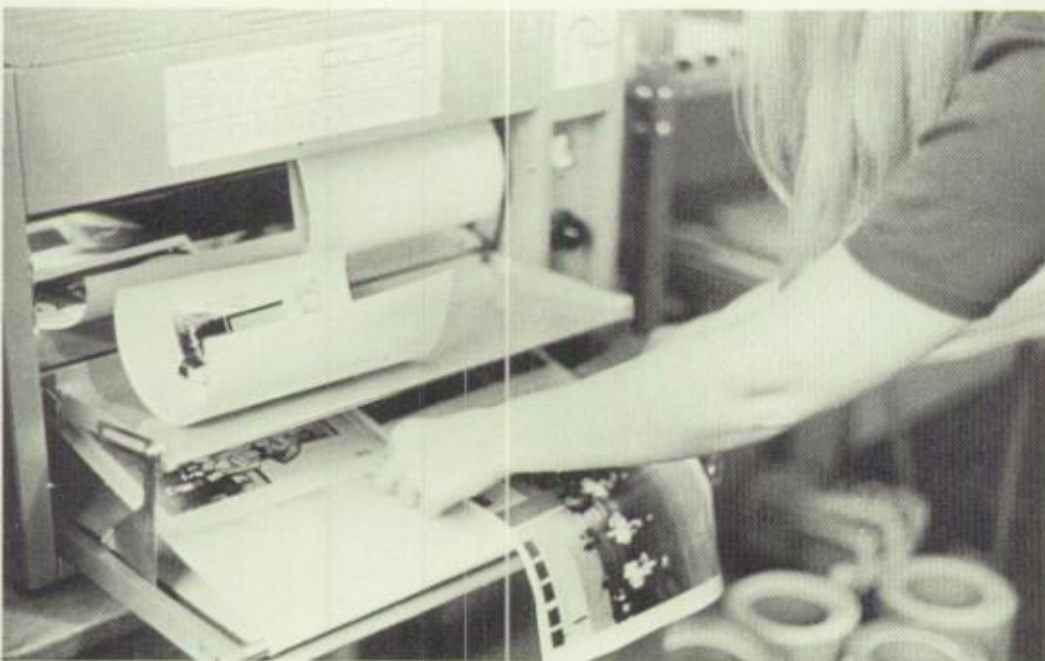

Decisions, decisions!!

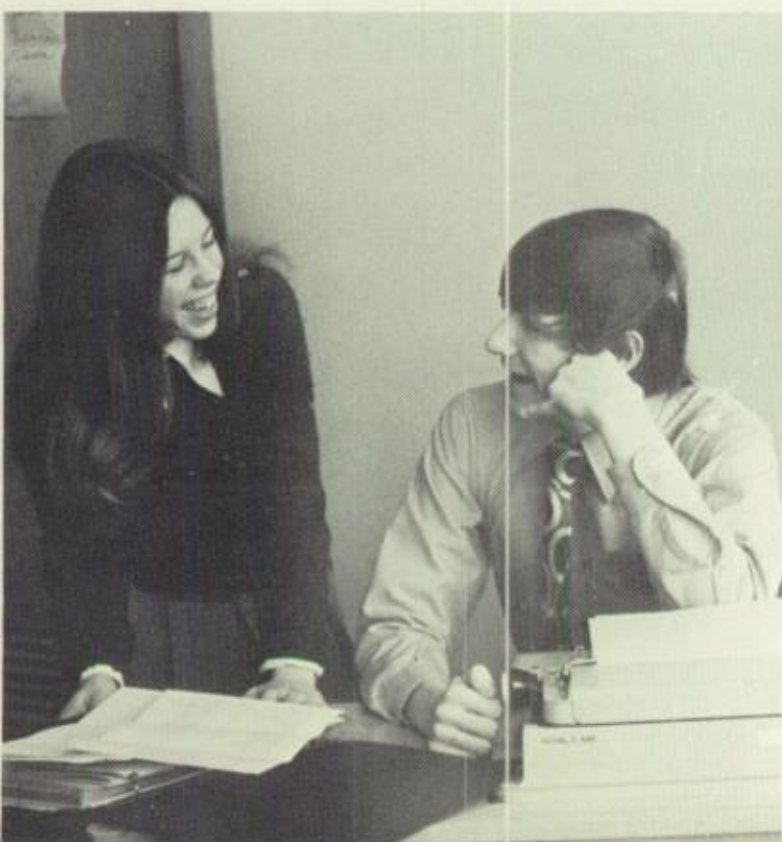

Anybody know how to spell "Feldt"?

This job is a little tiring, right, Janie?

Fr. Lloyd Kramlich, S.D.S. Photographer and Advisor

"They (you know, The Movement) say that soon there will be no more housewives, or kitchen chat-tel, or 'stove slaves', . . . that men will clean house and cook and baby sit, and women will 'fulfill their careers'. I say you can have it! I didn't join this organization to be a 'liberated woman', just a good housewife and a loving woman."

Future Homemakers

Patti Sims (President), Mrs. Loraine Koch (Advisor), Mary Sue Kaniecki (Secretary), Dawn Dannecker (Vice President), Marie Swartz (Treasurer).

Future Teachers

Sue Sieber (Secretary-Treasurer), Debbie Wagner (President), Mrs. Helen Monin (Advisor), Kathy Nagy (Vice President).

"I know teachers don't make much money, that the work is sometimes long and tiring and boring and unappreciated, and at times you're unpopular with those you try to reach. Throwing this all aside, I ask you: What greater profession is there than helping someone to use his God-given power to think and explore and grow? Maybe some day, I'll be a teacher!"

Dan Rogers (Secretary-Treasurer), Wally Nosek (Vice President), Greg Dearlove (President).

Varsity Club

"They told me I was on the Varsity club ... so here I am! We don't really do so much club-wise, but through our own efforts, my efforts, we promote a sports program, simply by playing sports, you know, basketball, football, track, and all the rest."

Ski Club

Mr. William Manning (Moderator), Rosanne Kibler (Secretary), Joe Persichini (President), Paul Zyga (Vice President), Monica Iwanski (Treasurer).

"I've always liked winter sports — with its piles of snow, its clean air, its coldness biting at my face. So I joined the Ski Club. Now I add one more element to winter: that certain nagging soreness I have the next day ... reminding me that I've done something out of my ordinary routine. Maybe that's the feeling you have when you grow!"

Liturgical Committee

"I stopped going to church my freshman year. The way the priest sat there at the altar and mumbled unintelligibly made me feel remote and unwanted. I guess I didn't really know what I was looking for. But working on liturgies at school has awakened me and brought me back to something important in life ... to a new closeness to God and my community. Thank God!"

Aesthetics & Appreciation

by Kevin Sowers

i let my tears fall,
as freely as the rain
and wonder
am i really sane?

i pack up my sorrows,
then i throw them all away,
and i start to think in,
how long it's been,
since i've seen a sunny day.

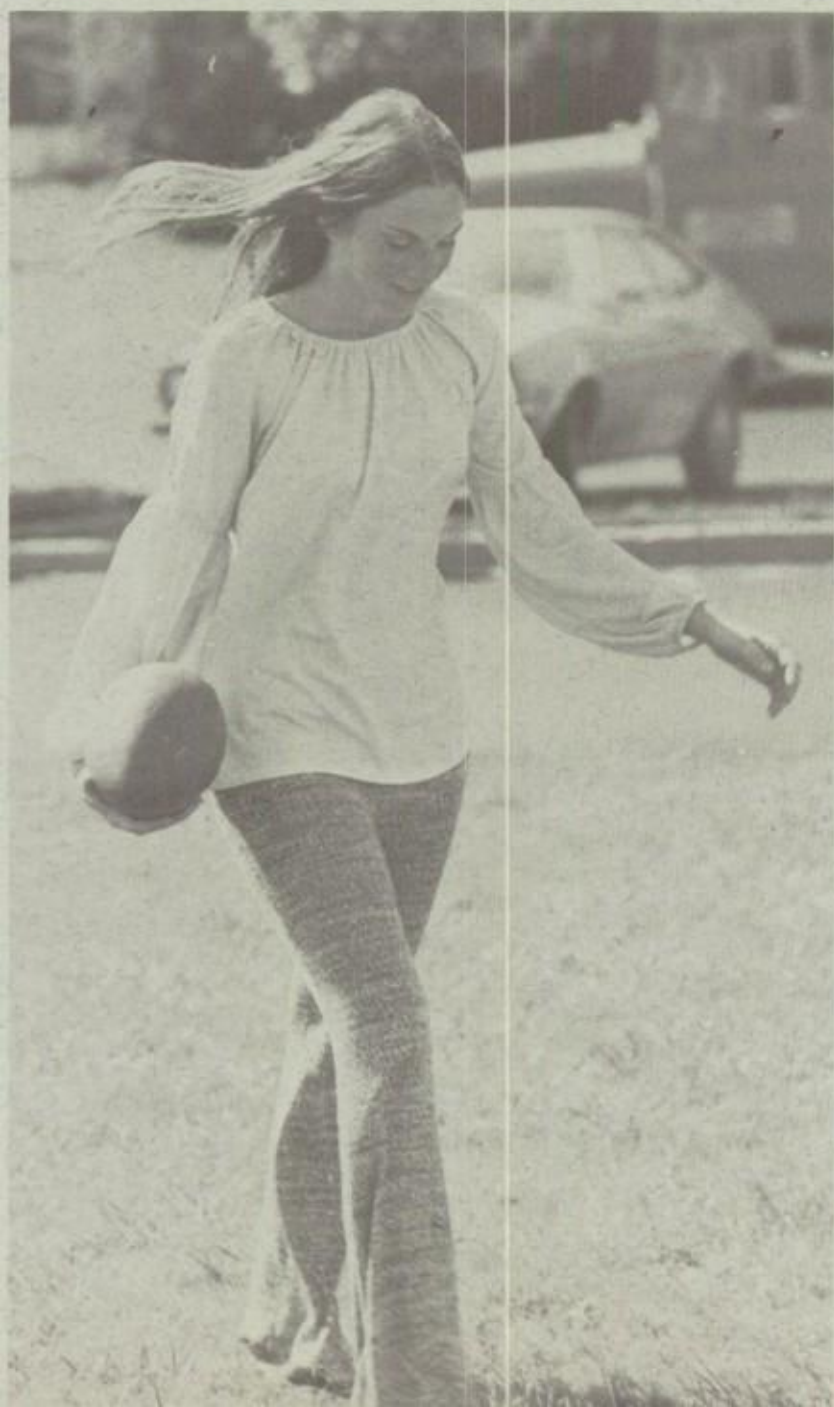

and the yellow clouds
just float by,
and all the children
watch me cry,
wondering why?

stars are dancing,
wives romancing,
but i only see the dark,
the hopes and wants within my heart,
have left without a mark.

my body is just an empty shell,
housing all that is lost,
let me live my days, in hate and fear,
then someday i'll pay the cost.

School
We walk through the halls
And look at the faces
We see all the times
We've travel'd the places.

But the empty glance
Or the toothful grin
Will never mask
The awful sin.

We all seek an answer
But we all look away
When we find that tomorrow
Is yesterday's today.

You probably don't get it
And neither do I
There's more to life
Than what meets the eye.

i used to write little poems
about skies
flowers,
and god.
i used to dream of ice cream
and pennies falling from the sky.
then people started tearing,
scratching
and hating.
they started making bombs
and using guns.
my soul became violent
and my mind confused.
i found a small box
got in . . . and shut the lid.
no one bothered me,
looked for me,
and when i came out,
no one remembered me.
so i sat for hours
crying out to every person that passed by
but they moved too quickly
and the noises were loud.
no one heard.
the seconds dragged on.
lawn mowers blared in my head
the sounds of children at play,
and the people laughing.
it was summer,
i'd made plans for summer,
oh, yes
but now all i have are the memories of summers past.
the sun is hot,
the air is white,
i'm dying.
maybe you'll see me in a plaza someday
or in a car,
or even in a crowd of people
but don't say anything,
for i will not answer,
i will not hear,
my mind will be lost in my dreams of tomorrow
and tomorrow i'll be dying in the memories of today.

Can't you hear me calling out,
and wishing on endless stars —
it gets pretty sick all this peach and love,
and the strumming of guitars.

i mean here i sit all alone
and it makes no difference to them —
if they picked a bouquet a dreams,
i'd be the flower without a stem.

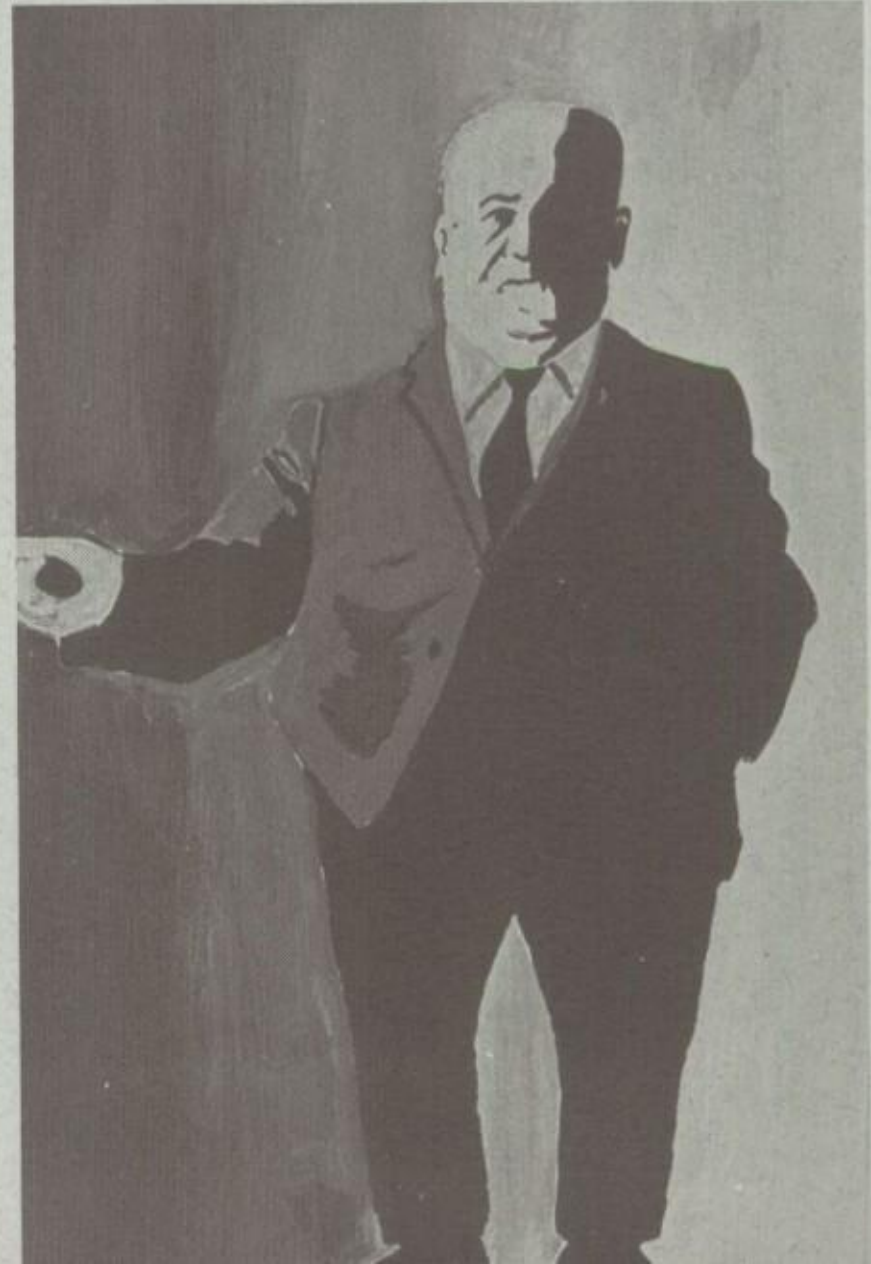

i'm tired of being trampled on,
but they pass by too busy to care,
some think they've got all the answers,
because of the length of their hair.

if if could find someone sincere,
maybe i could understand —
they wave their ecology flags
but are the first to litter the land.

they're against any form of prejudice,
and yet when i speak ... they laugh —
they're afraid of what i have to say:
they think they're a whole, while they're only a half.

i'm not speaking of all ... if you wonder,
only the ones that i fear,
because the deadliest animals of the jungle
are the ones most insincerE.

Splices from an Address on Education:

He who devotes himself to amassing a wealth of knowledge without turning his attention to the really fundamental questions of his own existence, who is satisfied with allowing knowledge about things and facts and events to give his life meaning, is bound at some point or other to find himself to have lived a fundamentally meaningless life.

Let me propose that the goal of education is responsibility. But before you object that you've heard that a thousand times before, let me say that I don't have in mind something like "reliability" or "dependability," a sort of social virtue often praised by teachers. I mean to take responsibility back to its original meaning. It's a Latin word which means "the ability to respond," "the ability to sing back in praise," and it carries within it the image of a fountain flowing from some unknown yet apparently inexhaustible source. Therefore to respond is to flow forth like a fountain from some inner source of power and creativity. It is to be in some fundamental harmony with yourself, to experience yourself in the depth of your vitality and spontaneity. To become responsible is to discover your own spontaneity, to let it emerge from its latency.

Education ... sees the self as something of infinite possibility, a potentially inexhaustible fountain of vitality and creativity, and the goal of education is to let this self emerge in its whole being. The goal of education, in other words, is responsibility.

This spontaneity is not something that just comes naturally, when you "let yourself go." It is a life goal. The goal of education, this form of inner freedom called responsibility, is a life goal. Anyone who supposes he has already achieved this freedom, and especially anyone who has never even considered that freedom is essentially an inner state, not a mere absence of external restraint, is likely to be the most constrained of all by cultural forces alien to his own authentic self.

But the radical in education is first and foremost to be understood as radically inquisitive and radically reflective. He is not content with superficial answers — rather, he wants to penetrate to the underlying truth, even if this effort means challenging time-honored traditions and making them defend and justify themselves at their very foundations. The radical is the restless idealist who is seeking to transform his culture by demanding that it reground itself on more genuine, truer foundations.

It is not the obligation of teachers alone to defend the ideals of education: everyone has a fundamental stake in the creation of a genuinely educational environment. This environment will be at once conservative, seeking to preserve the truth of tradition, radical, seeking to penetrate to the roots of issues, and liberal, seeking to establish personal freedom of thought and expression. Only such an environment will sustain us in our attempt to be and become truly responsible persons.

A collection of hand-painted violets
on china cups
and potted plants
on a highly polished windowsill.
Cut glass finery,
picturesque pieces of furniture
carved faces from mahogany.
They've seen finer days
when ladies in crisp ruffles danced through the halls of nobles
such as these.
Is it wise to preserve
under plastic
what should be left to decay,
and be swept under great rugs
from lost dynasties?
The silver in the closet,
fed the mouths of saints,
and the crystal
lined up on red velvet,
the color of kings..
It is only the sunshine which is now?
Is it only the rain that you can feel and call your own?
While our surroundings pull us so deeply into times already spent.
Only the wind can bring us back.
Let the wind lead you to the garden,
and there you shall find life.
Living in dirt
you will find a flower
with no plastic covering to protect it from the rain and the sun and wind.
And yet its beauty far surpasses that of the cold room.
Can't you see those walls possess death?
Take the sun
and you have found life.
Take the rain,
and you hold life giving.
Take the flower
and you hold life living.
Don't lock yourself in rooms
and don't clean the dust from death.
For the dust is the now
and the now is too soon gone.

God,
Mother Nature,
Brother and sister,
Hands that made the world
And called it the earth;
Hands that made skies to be blue
For eagles to soar
For the sun to be seen by eyes
All this though the skies . . .
The skies . . . that no longer carry eagles
Skies that hide the sun,
Skies that smother the earth.

God,
Mother Nature,
Brother and sister,
Hands that made the water,
Water to cool sunbaked earth,
Water to glisten as the sun carressed it,
Water for all to use for . . .
Life —
Water that now reeks green,
Water that cannot flow,
But burns with the scum of oil.

God,
Mother Nature,
Brother and sister,
Hands that made the land,
The land with green,
With trees,
With grass,
The land that now lies bare,
The land that lies raped of her pride,
The land that wonders where her beauty has gone.

The land . . .
The water . . .
The sky . . .
Come down to earth from the hands of God,
Left on earth in the hands of man.

Yesterday left,
And didn't even warn me,
Of what today might bring.
I stood blindly
Maybe expecting something,
But not really wanting,
Anything unexpected.
I thought of you,
And that made me smile
But I wished with my heart,
That it would rain,
So I wouldn't have to go out and
face the world.
It is inhhabited
By strange forces
That make my blood run cold,
And make me afraid,
But fear
Fills me with enlightenment,
For it reminds me I am human,
And that I too have to face tomorrow.

— Lauren Murphy
1970 write me a poem,

this weekend,
when the shades are down,
and there's no one home.
write me a poem,
you know how it is,
when you haven't got time
write me a poem,
and i'll call it mine.
write about the goldfish
and how they make rainbows
and how babie have souls
and fishing poles.
write it and don't forget to sign
my name on the last line,
'cause you know how it is
when you haven't got time,
write me a poem and i'll call it mine.

write me how love feels
and drops of rain
and automobiles,
Christmas and snow flakes and the bitter cold,
write me a poem
before you grow old.

what's that running down you face?
well i can't deny, i've felt the sky,
you — no i — can not lie,
but you've made me cry.
i just can't write
for you tonight
i'm going to the shore,
maybe write somemore
about people and the games they play
and maybe someday
i'll be able to say
here it is, i am here.
thn i'll write my poem
for someone that smiled
i caught their reflection in the sand
and i cast it to the waves,
i cast it to the waves.

Laborer by Lloyd Kramlich

I'm running, running, running
but i ain't gettin' nowhere
i can't see through all my tears
and to scream i wouldn't dare.

running, running, running
they're trying to cut my throat
but i'm diggin' round my soul
tryin' to make a moat.

and sunlight's tryin' to press my brain
soaked through and running with dirty rain.

i'm running, running, running
and i'm trying to catch my breath nothing worse than running tryin' to escape death.

they're at my back and reaching a step ahead of time
i'm running, running, running
i've got a mountain to climb.

blood is dripping to the ground
life's deafening noises that make no sound
i'm running, running, running
now my legs are slowing down.

terror edges into view
so i grasp for a dying heart
i feel the hand of a stranger
as it reaches to tear me apart.

running, running, running
will it ever come to an end?
scars that are masked by fear
scars that time cannot mend.

Death by Lloyd Kramlich

MIST,
settles in harbor,
where the motionless gulls,
take their rest,
after a busy day.
the faraway MOAN,
of an incoming vessel,
shattering the stillness.
occasional FOOTSTEPS,
echoing on wooden planks.
the sharp FRAGRANCE
of the salted water
burning my senses.
wet
PICTURES in sand
made by vistor's
of afternoon,
since gone.
reflecting LIGHTS
on black water.
the moon
covered by an occasional cloud.
slowly,
lights disappear.
time seeming endless.
yellow moon,
casts a solitary reflection,
guiding
sailors,
birds,
and fish
nestled at the bottom of the sea.
like a villain
the TIDE rushes in.
in its blackness,
takes from the shore,
a day's work,
washing away,
in the stillness,
memories of moments past.

Molière: "The Imaginary Invalid"

Activities

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy!" In the world of books and classrooms and teachers' looks we need the diversion of "cabbages and kings", of extracurriculars and important events and those things which round out the full gamut of high school life. It is in there that we give of ourselves in a completely new way . . . we can share our artistic talents . . . we can use our brawn . . . we can experience the community by being a part of it.

Golly, look at all this stuff! and the games! Weirdo games but maybe I'll try one! Boy, you can really get some decent things here. I wonder what this gym full of action is all about. If I weren't so damn picky and critical I could see it right off. I can see a bunch of kids just getting together and having a good time, just sharing themselves and their time with the whole gang. Yeah, having fun as a community, as a school. Money comes in too: I really don't care about the money so much, just the kids whom I share the money with are important to me.

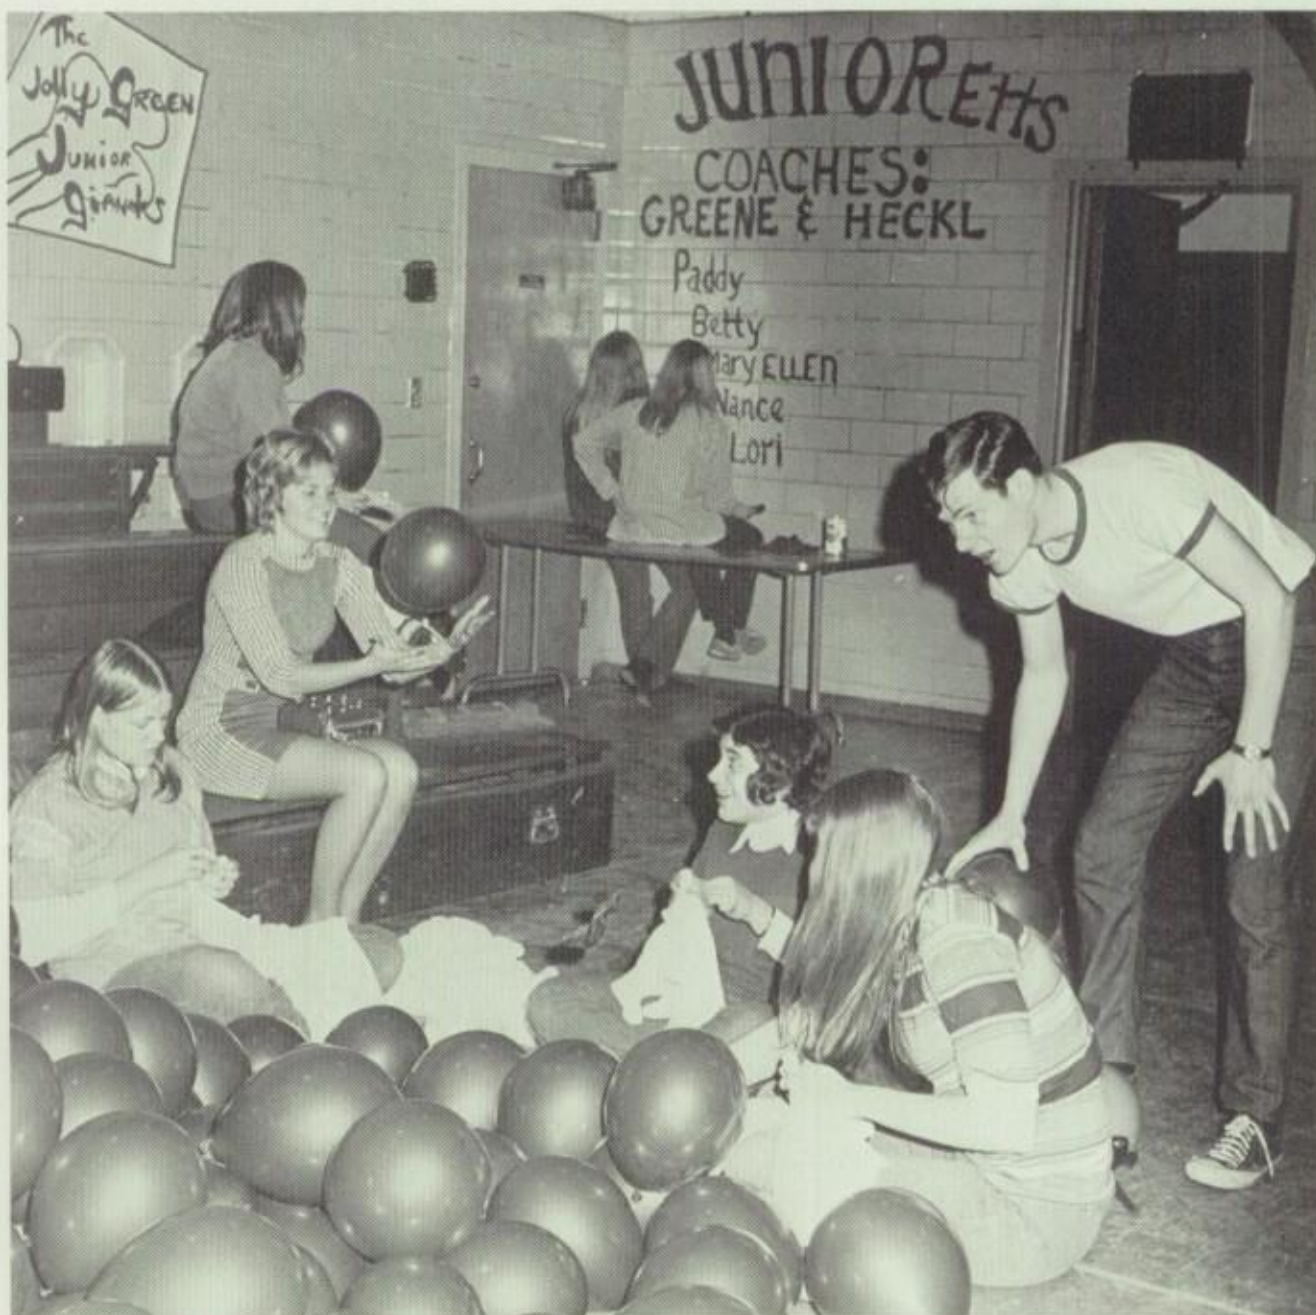

The mind, oh brother, the mind! When I see what all these kids can do, what all these kids can put out, I wonder about the mind. Some kids put out for sports, others for drama, but I can see what the mind can really do. The creativity, the intelligence, the pure unselfish idea of doing something to help people . . . to help people understand this confusing world in an easier way . . . to better the world without destroying it, that's the charge delivered to the scientific mind, and that overpowering charge is begun right here.

Science Fair

Junior Senior Day

Classes — this place is made up of classes. I am part of a class, part of a group of the most wonderful kids I'll ever know. So here I am, with the people I need, trying to prove we're better than another group of kids who need each other. The spirit it engenders is great, but the animosity that slowly simmers is juvenile. The guys, the same friends I've hung around with for three or four years, we've got to show them! It's stupid . . . but we seem to say: I know we're better, I know it!

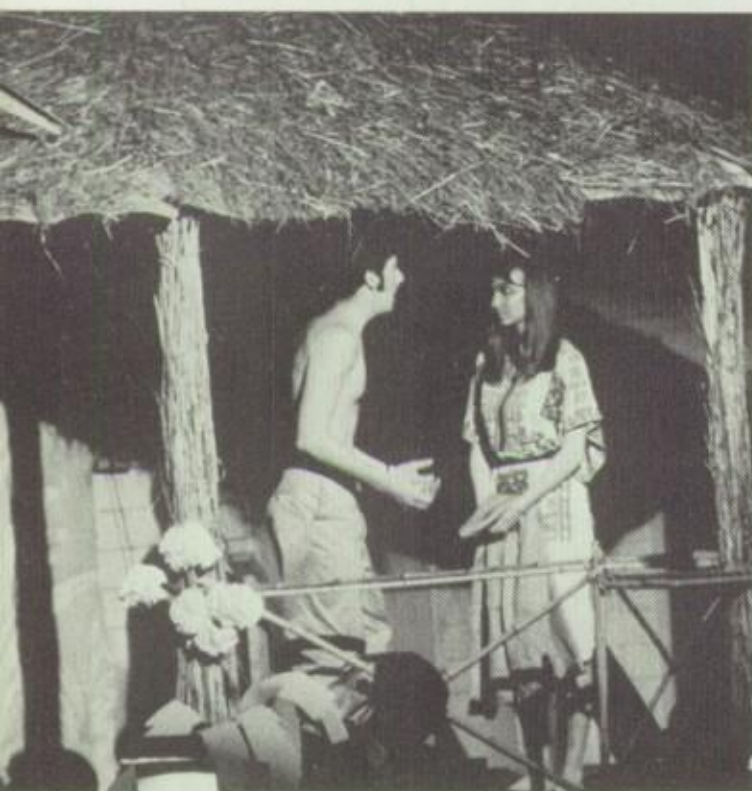

It's mine, it's beautiful and it's all mine . . . something to treasure, something to keep. But what does it mean, a gold circle with a beautiful stone . . . what does it mean to me? My class, my friends that I need, the people I love. My ring, it will hold so many memories, memories that I may some day share with someone special. My ring . . . memories of the past, promises of the future.

Somebody else, that's what acting is about . . . I've got to become someone else, change myself for a moment in time into someone different, someone not me! When I get on stage, I really change. What's the top prize? What's the reward? . . . to see people laugh, to make people cry, the ultimate reward, being able to instill an emotion into someone. To sing, to dance, to laugh, to give 100% of yourself, those are all part of loving the person you are (maybe, were?) not. I give myself to the audience. For those two or three hours, I live for the audience alone. For that little span of time, those people watching me are my entire world. For that small span of time, that audience is me, and I am the audience.

Drama At SMH

Life Around SMH

That long hall . . . sometimes it's filled . . . filled with the people who make my life worth living. That's what life is, isn't it? Look around! People . . . like I need them so much, my friends, my enemies, the people I love, I'm nothing without the kids that fill these halls. Yet, sometimes the halls are empty, so vacant. Sometimes I wonder if I'm needed. I feel so useless I could cry. But then the halls are filled again, filled with life, filled with people, and once again, I'm someone!

Underclassmen

We have come here wide-eyed and "hesitatingly eager" to try another slice of life . . . a life shared with old friends and new relationships . . . of life of scattered learning and various teachers . . . a life with emotional ties never before experienced . . . a life of growing up, by inches or by miles . . . sometimes a life of wasted time and sickening puppy loves . . . more often a life of seeming boredom interspersed with delightful surprises! It's like sailing a ship for the first time: you want to try it so badly, to master it, yet you're scared, and as you learn and experience it, you gather confidence and poise and a certain amount of cockiness. That's what it means to be an underclassman!

They were thrown into a new world, a world where people were all that matters. They could not exist as individuals, but they were all separate, divided, looking for identities. They were thrown together in a world where unity was vital. Desperately they pulled together, forming a separate entity; unique, special, and proud of what they accomplished.

And they found themselves leading, none of them asking to lead, just finding themselves in the front. And lead they did, with a spirit, a vitality, an unparalleled emotion of pride and togetherness which inspired the entire school to love life for what it is. Remember, you are important, not only to yourself, but to the world . . . you are a miniature shaper of the world — for better or for worse! Respect freedom in yourself and others — the freedom to hold onto the beliefs you really value, beliefs that have passed your “time-test”, beliefs you are willing to stand up for in the face of ridicule: the belief in the value of LIFE (born or unborn or well-aged!), the value of freedom (regardless of the size of your wallet or the color of your skin), the value of the person (a non-exploitive being!). Work here and now to prepare yourself for bettering humanity. Prepare physically, emotionally, intellectually, and attitudinally. And above all, BELIEVE IN YOURSELF . . . then shape the world!

Sports

Man, the athlete, meets his environment with his whole self: his brain and his brawn, his intellectual sharpness and his bodily agility, his pensiveness and his muscular reflexes. Every aspect of his being should be — if he is willing to perfect himself — honed to razor sharpness. One cannot fully function without the other. At times this is an almost impossible task . . . yet it's there . . . to be started . . . to be done.

Varsity Tennis

"At times, I really hate to go out for practice . . . on that damnable hot court. Then the real games are played before a few nobodies . . . no cheers . . . no hoopla . . . just me and that other guy! But, then, maybe that's it: the individual pitted against the individual, skill vs. skill, manoeuvre against counter-manoevre. I guess that's the name of the game."

Track

"All my strength, ... all ... that's what track is all about — 100%. Anything less, anything that isn't everything I've got just isn't 'track'. To throw ... to run ... to jump as far and as fast as you can is a MUST. Pain and exhaustion don't exist for us, they're just mere factors. Keep trying, keep running, keep throwing, keep jumping ... and you just might make it. Others have!"

Varsity Baseball

"A little white ball, . . . so elusive. It's amazing how much depends on that white chunk of cowhide. Skill and power — the two words that I as a varsity player learn to live with. And who acknowledges my skill, who is there to cheer those game-saving plays? I can give everything I have into a slide or a throw, but who knows how much I'm really giving?"

"Some say we're unskilled, you know, not as good as others. I say 'bull'. We can hit, run and throw as well as anybody else in our class. We can deliver when asked to deliver, but nobody needs to ask. The power swing, the style of a throw, the perfection of a slide . . . all can be ours, . . . all will be ours in time, you wait and see!"

J.V. Baseball

Varsity Golf

Paul Tryanowski, Richard Was,
John Czapski,
Michael Boron,
Tim Nowak,
David Dobrowolski,

Greg Flejtuch.
KNEELING:
Richard Wargala,
David Daddario,
Walter Brodzik,
Bruce Campbell,
Paul Dobrowolski.

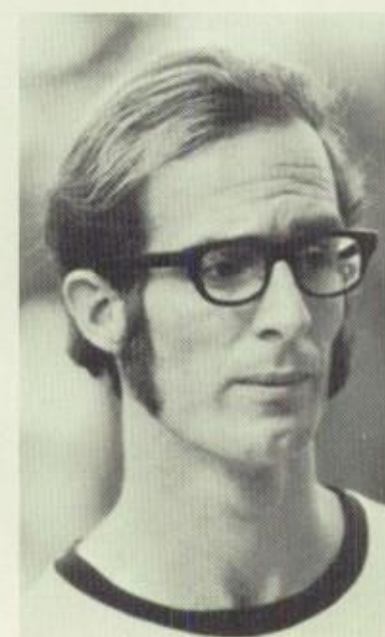

"Oh, no, not again! . . . third time I've been in the woods today. And all those fuddy-duddies on the other team snickering at me! You know this really feels funny standing here in the middle of all these trees . . . like a fool! I need this one . . . I've got to concentrate . . . all right I did it. We're number one again!"

Cross Country

"I'm all alone, just running, running, running . . . good lord! my legs! How much longer can I keep this up? It seems that no matter how many times I ask myself, I never give an answer . . . I just keep running. Times come when I doubt I'll ever reach that finish line, times come when I wonder why I ever started running. But I know I'll never stop . . . why? . . . why? why?"

Varsity Football

"Eleven guys, twenty-two kids — all turned into one machine . . . that's what we are, isn't it? . . . a machine! We're trained to think, act, and perform as one unit. And where does it get us? Are we any different now? Physical achievements have been combined with a spirit of unity to turn us into one living, breathing, sweating team! That's what we're all about: one guy's pain, one guy's struggle . . . reflected in everybody's will to win. Win, we must win! But when we lose, well, we've just got to struggle more, suffer more, learn more . . . but we must remain a WE, and not an I!"

Wrestling

"You know, you spectators just don't understand us wrestlers. I've watched YOU while my teammate was flat on the mat, struggling his heart out! You shout at him as if all he has to do is wish himself out of a tight situation. Yeah, he wants to be on top and he's concentrating ... he's straining every lousy muscle ... he's praying for that other guy to make one fatal mistake. Maybe he doesn't have enough experience yet ... maybe he's worn out from losing weight ... but, for heaven's sake, give him a little praise ... whether he wins or loses, ok?"

Mr. John Rugani, coach.

Varsity Basketball

"As I stand at the foul line, dripping with hot sweat, I begin to wonder (as I look up at the glaring backboard) if it's all worth while ... considering the success we've had this year, that is. I take the ball from the official, aim and shoot. The ball falls through the net ... the crowd (what's there, that is!) cheers with approval. It's then that I say to myself 'Buddy, it's all worth while, 'cuz people care!'"

Junior Varsity Football

"For a while I felt like a hot house plant, you know, only good for transplanting ... for transplanting to the bigger team. But after we got started, I knew I was wrong ... because when you start to play you just don't notice the line barriers or the age differences. It's the team and it's us."

"So here we are, alive, young, spunky, but inexperienced. We're all here for one reason: the love of the sport! Will we ever make it though? ... Who cares? ... We're here now ... let's play our hearts out and love it!"

Junior Varsity Basketball

Freshman Basketball

"So look at us! . . . some of us are bigger than seniors, . . . some of us so small the basketball outweighs us. And I ask you what's it all about? I think I'm gettin' it: being together . . . learning together . . . learning to be a class . . . to be a TEAM . . . to feel the support of others and most of all to give it!"

Intramurals At St. Marys

"I love sports ... and I love exercise ... but, hell, I hate competition! simply because it's so cut-throat, so pushy, so dog-eat-dogish! You know (and I saw this on T-V) there are some countries, and perhaps they're way ahead of us on this, that have non-competitive sports, just so they won't hurt the sensitivities of their fellowman. I think that's great! Anyway, we seill have competitive intramurals here. I guess we're old-fashioned."

Cheerleading Varsity

Jane Rogacki, Judy Mang, Jane Steimer,
Cheryl Griffin, Margie McBride, Ann Andolina, Rosemary Faulhaber, Kathy Geyer.

Junior Varsity

SMH Sports Parade

Goals and aims differ as much as the philosophies behind them differ. So athletics in a humane school, not to mention a Christian school, have strikingly different aims from a purely secular outlook. Winning doesn't take on that neon-bright, almost giggly glow that it sometimes plays in schools ... at least, it shouldn't! A team can lose and still reach its end — Discipline and we-ness — which, of course, go hand in glove. Without discipline — that deep committed self-regulation to a standard — you couldn't bear the brunt of long, sweaty pre-exercises, those rain-doused football practices, the long, lonely daily mile runs, those early-to-bed nights, those drinking and smoking regulations. And what does discipline do for the individual? It steels him into a stronger, more able person, who is capable of facing life with inner strength. The "we-ness" of athletics destroys one's selfishness and conceit and egomaniacness that are so de-humanizing. Yes, sports have a different slant, a more human slant, when we reject its pseudo-glories!

IT'S WORTH SOME THOUGHT.

Ours is an age of thinking and rethinking.
 The traditional is undergoing constant scrutiny.
 Learn about yesterday,
 experience today,

LESSON OF THE TREES

The old trees lean'd forward, The younger ones stepp'd back — To form a path . . . A shaded tunnel . . . A roadway forward; Not for themselves, But for others — Their human brothers: Another selfless gesture On the part of a selfless creation! A CREATION of persistent GROWTH: Fiber knit to fiber — Like huge sinews Mantel'd in bark, to be used . . . to be thank'd for . . . NOT to be EXPLOITED! "We are your brothers" (say the trees) "Brothers without feet . . . Without precise language . . . Yet we talk and remember and exist with the universe in perfect harmony." "Learn from us, man, To exist in perfect harmony with the world . . . To share yourselves with others (in all colors) To grow — slowly . . . steadily . . . selflessly . . . " "Within our fibers and greenery We share with you and give to you The air you breathe . . . Be thankful! The wine you sip . . . Be thankful! The fruit and food to nourish you . . . Be thankful! The cozy fire that warms you . . . Be thankful! The home that houses you . . . Be thankful! The books and papers and magazines that feed your soul . . . Be thankful! The carvings that express your mind . . . Be thankful! Yes, be THANKFUL . . . and go out school'd in sharing: A lesson learned from trees!" Lloyd Paul Kramlich, S.D.S. January 25, 1972 An Anniversary.
